SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

John A. Moaney Jr. (1914-1978) was born in Easton, Maryland. He joined the army in October 1941 and was sent to England after the start of World War II where he served with the 751 Quartermaster Company. In August 1942, when Dwight D. Eisenhower was in England to plan the invasion of North Africa, Moaney transferred to Eisenhower's personal staff. For the next 27 years Moaney served as Eisenhower's valet. He accompanied Eisenhower throughout World War II and was stationed at the White House during Eisenhower's term as president. After Eisenhower left the White House, Moaney went with him to Gettysburg. Moaney retired from the Army in 1969 after the President's death, but continued to work for Mamie Eisenhower until he died in 1978.

The papers of John A. Moaney consist mostly of memorabilia he collected during his military service. This includes copies of official military orders and certificates, souvenirs, printed material, and a small quantity of social correspondence. The collection contains no information about Moaney's duties in Eisenhower's household.
